

Conference

Why are sweets by the till? Delivering empowering financial education

Friday 7 March 2014, 14.30–17.30
BP Lecture Theatre

Programme

- 14.00 Registration
14.30 Realistic financial education and why it's necessary
Martin Lewis, MoneySavingExpert.com
14.50 Activity
British Museum
15.00 The new national curriculum pfeq
(Personal Finance Education Group)
15.20 Activity
Made of Money, Quaker Social Action
15.30 Making a programme of study real
Reading School
15.40 Managing money
The Money Charity
16.00 First financial decisions
Money Advice Service
16.20 Activity
National Association of Student Money Advisers
16.30 Contextualising financial education
George Mitchell School and Rivers Academy
16.50 Activity
The Royal Mint Museum
17.00 So why are sweets by the till?
British Museum
17.20 Activity
British Museum
17.30 Close
Followed by a networking drinks reception in the Clore Education Centre Foyer

Optional morning sessions

10.00–10.45

- Workshop for business studies curriculum leaders
Studio
- Using museums as a teaching resource
Claus Moser Room
- Gallery-based activities
Citi Money Gallery (Room 68)

11.00–11.45

- Workshop for mathematics curriculum leaders
Studio
- Using museums as a teaching resource
Claus Moser Room
- Tour of the gallery by the curator
Citi Money Gallery (Room 68)

12.00–12.45

- Workshop for citizenship curriculum leaders
Studio
- Using museums as a teaching resource
Claus Moser Room
- Gallery-based activities
Citi Money Gallery (Room 68)

13.00–14.00

- Object handling
(drop-in session, no booking required)
Studio
- Tour of the gallery by the curator
Citi Money Gallery (Room 68)

Limited availability, booking essential
Booking for these sessions only:
learning@britishmuseum.org

Throughout the day, you are also free to explore the Museum, take the maths challenge or follow the money trail. Resources for the latter two can be collected from the Ford Centre for Young Visitors.

Supported by Citi

